Supporting San Francisco Communities

Kaiser Permanente San Francisco
2015 Community Investment Report
Through our grants program, Kaiser Permanente San Francisco supports a wide variety of organizations serving vulnerable populations and improving community health. Below is a list that includes San Francisco organizations that received grants from the San Francisco Medical Center or the Northern California Community Benefit Department. These nonprofits were selected to address the three priority health needs identified in the latest Community Health Needs Assessment. In 2015, over $4 million in grants and donations were provided to benefit the San Francisco community.

Increase Access to High Quality Health Care and Services

Access Institute for Psychological Services
Professional mental health services for seniors at the Bayview Adult Day Health Center and training for staff which improves the quality of care and enhances seniors’ health, their well-being, and their ability to be independent.

Conard House
Peer Health Navigators support clients living in residential hotels in the Tenderloin who have behavioral health problems and poor health histories to create connections for primary care.

Curry Senior Center
The Multi-Lingual Health Coach Program provides interpretation, support, advocacy, and education to Tenderloin seniors with health disparities.

San Francisco City Impact
Many Kaiser Permanente clinicians volunteer at this Tenderloin clinic. Low-income seniors and disabled residents in SROs are connected to primary care services through a medical house calls program and monitored referrals.

San Francisco State University Health Equity Initiative
The Metro Health Academy develops curriculum to include new health equity and career readiness content to help diversify the health care workforce.

San Francisco Unified School District
Funding provides equipment needed for the Health Care Center at the new Willie Brown Middle School in Bayview Hunters Point.

Shanti Project
The Breast Cancer Program augments hospital-based care and reduces the barriers that uninsured and underserved women face while accessing, maintaining, and completing cancer treatment.
Increase Access to High Quality Health Care and Services, continued

SteppingStone
Partnering with Openhouse, Swords to Plowshares, and Positive Resource Center, the Patient Navigator program improves access to quality health care for an underserved population of LGBT seniors and veterans.

Women’s Community Clinic
The Western Addition Health Training (WAHT) Program provides training to community health workers and medical assistants, with a special focus on underserved communities of color in the Western Addition neighborhood.

Youth Law Center
Youth Law Center works to eliminate abuse and neglect of children, to reduce out-of-home placements and incarceration, and to assure that those who are removed are held in safe, humane conditions.

Increase Healthy Eating and Active Living (HEAL)

18 Reasons
Adults and teens are trained to teach the Cooking Matters series of classes to low-income adults, seniors, and children in the central and southern neighborhoods in San Francisco.

America SCORES
Low-income children who attend Tenderloin public elementary schools and programs are engaged in supervised soccer programs in the Civic Center designed to increase their physical activity.

APA Family Support Services
The project increases the number of public housing residents who use the Sunnydale Food Pantry by providing nutritional education, health screenings, and other social services in order to reduce cardiovascular disease and obesity.

Children’s Council of San Francisco
The Healthy Apple+ program trains and rewards child care providers that adopt evidence-based nutrition and activity practices to improve the health of the children in their care.

Community Grows
Seed to Mouth is a garden-based education program that teaches children in the Western Addition how to adopt a healthy diet through free after-school cooking classes and monthly in-school Salad Days.
Increase Healthy Eating and Active Living (HEAL), continued

Golden Gate National Parks Conservancy
This grant supports Healthy Parks/Healthy People in the Bay Area, a collaborative of parks and agencies working to increase use and accessibility of parks for healthy activities.

Impala Racing Team
This women’s running group is implementing an after-school fitness-through-running and nutrition education program for girls at the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Middle School in the Excelsior.

Lemonade - A Yoga Program
Instructors teach yoga to boys who are being held at the Juvenile Detention Center. The sessions take place during their recreation hours which were formerly spent in sedentary activities. The goal is for the boys to increase their physical activity by continuing to practice yoga on their own time.

On Lok 30th Street Senior Center
Always Active is an evidence-based program offered at senior centers throughout the city which increases activity level, improves health, and helps frail seniors live independently.

Playworks
The Junior Coach Program energizes education through peer leaders and makes recess a positive and productive time for all children.

San Francisco RBI
This program provides baseball and softball coaching, fitness conditioning, social-emotional skills building, and nutrition education for low-income Western Addition students in grades K-8.

Shape Up San Francisco
Parents of children at five public schools in Bayview Hunters Point receive training and support to advocate for equitable, quality physical education that meets the state mandates for 1,200 underserved students.

Tenderloin Healthy Corner Store Coalition
The Coalition is working with the city’s HealthyRetailSF initiative to redesign corner stores in the Tenderloin to increase access to nutritious foods and drive community demand through marketing and educational activities.
Ensure Safe and Healthy Environments:

Center for Youth Wellness
This child health center located in Bayview Hunters Point is changing the way practitioners, policymakers, and parents work to prevent and address adverse childhood experiences.

Community Matters
The Safe School Ambassador program equips student leaders in public elementary schools to intervene in bullying-related incidents and serve as classroom mentors to younger students.

La Casa de las Madres
To reduce intentional injuries from domestic violence, La Casa trainers empower high school teens and allied adults with the knowledge and tools to prevent and end the cycle of violence.

Niroga Institute
This yoga program helps protect Mission High School students from youth violence and bullying through a multi-dimensional curriculum teaching stress-resilience, self-awareness, self-regulation, and healthy relationship skills.

North East Medical Services
North East Medical Services (NEMS) offers culturally-appropriate education, behavioral counseling, and group interventions to support low-income, Asian immigrants who want to successfully quit smoking.

San Francisco Kidpower
Kidpower teaches personal safety skills and how to recognize, intervene, and prevent bullying to young people, educators, and parents in low-income schools and programs.

St. Anthony Foundation
This Tenderloin health clinic helps diverse, low-income residents with behavioral problems and high rates of tobacco use to quit smoking through free medication, evidence-based counseling, and daily encouragement.
